

AMERICAN OSTEOPATHIC ASSOCIATION
TREATING OUR FAMILY AND YOURS

May 2, 2017

The Honorable Arthur Orr
Alabama State Senate Finance and Taxation Education Committee
11 South Union Street
Suite 730
Montgomery, Alabama 36130

Dear Chairman Orr:

The American Osteopathic Association (AOA) and the Alabama Osteopathic Medical Association (ALOMA) are writing to urge you to support SB 335, and to request amendments. This bill establishes the Alabama Physician Initiative to provide scholarships for Alabama medical students who agree to practice family medicine in rural areas of the state. While the bill recognizes allopathic medical colleges and residencies accredited by the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education, it fails to include equivalency for osteopathic medical colleges and residency programs accredited by the American Osteopathic Association. The AOA and ALOMA support the intent of this bill, and believe that it will help alleviate physician workforce shortage concerns and work toward providing an adequate supply of physicians in underserved Alabama areas in the future. However, we respectfully request amendments to reflect osteopathic equivalency in accordance with Alabama law.¹

The AOA represents nearly 130,000 osteopathic physicians (DOs) and osteopathic medical students, promotes public health, encourages scientific research, serves as the primary certifying body for DOs and is the accrediting agency for osteopathic medical schools. More information on DOs/osteopathic medicine can be found at www.osteopathic.org. ALOMA is a professional medical organization that represents almost 600 DOs providing patient care in Alabama.

The osteopathic medical profession:

- Has long emphasized the importance of providing care to patients in rural and underserved areas, with a disproportionate amount of DOs providing services in these areas compared to other professionals.
- Comprises 11% of all US physicians but is responsible for 16% of patient visits in communities with populations of fewer than 2,500.²
- Represents 40% of all physicians who are located in medically underserved areas or who treat medically underserved populations.³

² Osteopathic Medicine and Medical Education in Brief, American Association of Colleges of Osteopathic Medicine. Available at: <http://www.aacom.org/about/osteomed/Pages/default.aspx>.

- Is committed to providing health care in rural Alabama communities, as reflected by the two osteopathic medical schools located in the state: the Alabama College of Osteopathic Medicine (ACOM) in Dothan and the Edward Via College of Osteopathic Medicine - Auburn Campus (VCOM). This year, ACOM will graduate its inaugural class of 162 students who will enter primary care specialties in rates well above the national average.⁴ In addition, 68% of VCOM's alumni graduating across three campuses have entered primary care residencies.⁵

Alabama's current physician shortage:

- Currently, approximately 37% of Alabama's residents live in areas lacking sufficient primary care physicians.⁶
- Additionally, 30% of Alabama's physicians are age 60 or older.⁷
- Alabama has one of the largest populations of older Americans of any state, with 15% of the population aged 65 and over.⁸
- Aging populations consume a disproportionately large portion of health care services, which could exacerbate Alabama's current physician shortage.⁹

The AOA and ALOMA respectfully request the following amendments to reflect osteopathic equivalency:

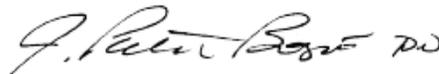

1. Replace "college(s) of medicine" throughout the bill with "college(s) of medicine or osteopathy."
2. "(8) RESIDENT and RESIDENCY. Training or the title of the graduate medical education program of three or more years offered in a teaching hospital that is accredited by the American Council on Graduate Medical Education or the American Osteopathic Association."

Providing scholarships for family medicine physicians who agree to serve in rural and underserved areas is an excellent incentive to attract and retain physicians in the state. The AOA and ALOMA urge you to protect patient access to timely, high-quality care by supporting SB 335. Should you need any additional information, please feel free to contact Nicholas A. Schilligo, MS, AOA Associate Vice President of State Government Affairs, at nschilligo@osteopathic.org or (800) 621-1773, ext. 8185.

Sincerely,

Boyd R. Buser, DO
President, AOA
